Bigger and Better Every Year

By Katie Akin

Each year brings many exciting changes; and this year was no exception at Logos. The school upgraded its information system, added more classrooms, said goodbye to some wonderful staff members, and welcomed many new faces.

Renweb, the new online information system, allows parents to see their children's grades and behavioral records, streamlining communication between parents and teachers. According to Mr. Loren Euhus, the Logos registrar, high enrollment numbers rendered paper attendance sheets and a limited-access database on a single computer impractical. "As the school gets bigger," he explained, "it just gets overwhelming." This year, the Logos enrollment is 363 students with 235 elementary students and 128 secondary students.

Renweb "has opened (the school's database) so many different people can access it," Mr. Euhus said. "Whatever your role, you can access it to do what you want." Principal Matt Whitling has also found the system helpful. "We are very pleased with Renweb," he said. "So far feedback from parents and teachers is very positive."

This year, only secondary teachers are required to use Renweb to post grades and record attendance and behavior. Starting next year, the whole school will use it. Mr. Euhus is overseeing the transition to Renweb, assisted by student intern Trevor Morse.

In addition to Renweb oversight and teaching his regular classes, Mr. Euhus replaced Mrs. Charlene Polek, taking on new duties as registrar and senior class advisor. During her 13 valuable years at Logos, Mrs. Polek instituted the school's first database.

In addition to advancing technologically, Logos also added a new classroom to each of its elementary portables. Each portable now holds three classrooms instead of two. Preschool, First Grade, and Second Grade are held in one portable while Third, Fourth, and Fifth Grades are held in the other. Another classroom of each grade is still taught in the main Logos building.

The first day of school introduced students to many new teachers. Mrs. Kirsten Miller, mother of five current Logos students and one graduate, is the new first grade teacher. She took over from Mrs. Laura (Shaw) Leithart who moved out of the area after her wedding this summer.

Miss Chantelle Courtney, a 2008 alumna, and Mrs. Micaela Blum, mother of four Logos students, team-teach one of the second grade classes, formerly taught by Miss Chelsea Jones. In order to accommodate steadily increasing enrollment numbers, Logos added a second fifth grade class, led by Mr. Jim Becker (Fun fact: Mr. Becker has run 53 marathons.)

Jovial janitor, Mr. Andrew Isker, added the U.S. History

Whose Story Are You Gonna Believe?

Unbeknownst to many at Logos currently, I was privileged to be the elementary principal at Logos for our first 19 years. That meant, as it does now for Mr. Whitling, that there were many times when I had to judge the merits of two differing stories of what exactly happened at recess.

I would have two little boys (of course) sitting in front of me, with or without blood being present, and it was my job to discern the truth of whose story was likely the correct one. (Most often the truth was a mix of the two tales; there was enough guilt to spread around.)

Many times I had to take a page from C.S. Lewis's first Narnia book, The Lion, the Witch, and the Wardrobe. At one point, the Professor is trying to help Peter and Susan determine who is telling the truth about the wardrobe's magic powers: Edmund or Lucy. Lucy told her siblings that the magic was real but Edmund said he and Lucy were 'just pretending.'

"That is a point," said the Professor, "which certainly deserves consideration; very careful consideration. For instance — if you will excuse me for asking the question — does your experience lead you to regard your brother or your sister as the more reliable? I mean, which is the more truthful?"

"That's just the funny thing about it, sir," said Peter. "Up till now, I'd have said Lucy every time." The Professor then strongly encourages Peter and Susan to be extremely careful about accusing a normally trustworthy person of lying.

A few weeks ago Julie and I took several days to visit our daughter's family in New York City. Among the many fascinating sites we saw was the American Museum of Natural History (complete with a large statue of Theodore Roosevelt on a horse out front!). It's an immense museum full of a delightful variety of stuffed animals, posed in life-like positions in beautiful dioramas similar to their natural habitats.

In the wing for fish and other water fauna, there was a large open theater area (directly under a full-scale replica of a blue whale!). A short film was running over and over, telling the same story again and again. We sat down and witnessed the story of how life began on earth, sometime "over four billion years ago."

It was the same story of mindless evolution repeated in various ways throughout the museum. So, under one massive roof there is the tiny mouse monkey (less than 3 inches long) and the gigantic blue whale on display, and millions of visitors are told again and again: "These animals have a common ancestor! Don't ask us for transitional forms — we don't have those to put on display, but you MUST believe us — we are scientists!"

Superintendent's Soliloquy

"We know not all stories are true, even if many people believe them. Sincerely believing the wrong thing doesn't make it true."

It has been my privilege to teach our sophomores a fall semester class on the history of the War Between the States, or the Civil War, as it's more commonly called. The story of this war that I was taught (as are most Americans) was this: Before 1861 the South was a wicked place full of evil slave-owners who incessantly beat and killed their slaves. The North was a wonderful, moral place full of compassionate people who hated slavery and racism. So the North fought the South to free the slaves and end slavery for all time. Naturally the North won, since they were in the right, and the South was taught its lesson and life improved for all Americans.

The only problem with this story is that much of it is not true. In reading original sources, quotes, biographies, and studying works of very smart people I discovered a very different version of the story of this war. There is not time or space here to get into what is still a very controversial story. Just one example: the life and character of Confederate General Robert E. Lee. Any honest study of this man's life and words should cause a thinking person to admit that there may be more to the real story than what is popularly believed. For Christians, it's far more significant and compelling. If ever a man was a godly Christian, General Lee was that man. Which begs the question: Whose story do we believe? Lee's or modern historians'?

At Logos we talk and teach a lot about 'world views.' Another way of examining a person's 'world view' is simply this: "Whose story do they believe?" We tell children and each other stories all the time. The world tells us stories all the time, too: "You need to reduce your carbon footprint because man is a cancer on the planet!"

Yet we know not all stories are true, even if many people believe them. Sincerely believing the wrong thing doesn't make it true, either. "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." From that truth, all other stories must be evaluated. His story, as written in His Word and expressed through His Son, is our best, our only infallible measure for determining who is lying and who is telling us the truth in every story we hear.

Not only do we want to help train many students to be 'Lucys' who are known for telling and loving the truth, we want to be as wise as the Professor in the process. Please pray for us toward that end.

Record Number of International Students Attend Logos

By Katie Akin

A record number of international students attend Logos this year: 20 secondary and three elementary students. Korean is heard in the hallways and classrooms and around the lunch tables. Would you like to learn about another country? Ask the Koreans in the third row or the Nigerians in the second.

So why Logos? How did they find us? About a generation ago, Mr. Jim Wilson, whose son Mr. Douglas Wilson helped found Logos, started a Bible study for Korean students at the University of Idaho. Many of his students became Christians through his witness, then moved back to South Korea (taking a high opinion of Logos home with them) and started families of their own. A child of one of Mr. Wilson’s students was the first Korean student to attend Logos. Juhyeon Park arrived at Logos in 1996 and graduated the same school year.

As Superintendent Tom Garfield said, “The word spread from there. (Korean parents) have a strong desire to have their children in a private school in the United States.” Children of Mr. Wilson’s students, then cousins, then friends began to cross the Pacific Ocean to attend Logos. Today, six Korean students attend Logos on the recommendation of Mr. Youngmok Jeong, father of two Logos seniors. Mr. Jeong owns an academy in Korea called JYM English Academy. He acts as coordinating agent to students who wish to study in America.

In addition to swelling numbers of South Korean students, students from Taiwan and even Vietnam have chosen Logos in the past. Today, several Nigerian students attend Logos as well. This year’s senior class includes seven international students.

How could anyone manage Logos coursework in a second language 1000s of miles from home? Logos requires international students to speak English, have a home to board in, and understand the basics of Christianity.

In addition, Mrs. Paula Jones, fourth grade teacher at Logos, is the International Student Director, a new position this year. She welcomed new international students with an orientation at the beginning of the year and supplements their diligence and willpower with tutoring on Mondays and Wednesdays. She teaches English grammar, proofreads essays, and explains bewildering idioms, such as “Barking up the wrong tree.” Michelle Bollen, a junior at NSA, assists as well. First year international students are required to attend these tutoring sessions, but any international students are welcome.

Mrs. Jones has also implemented “Peer Partners.” These students help international students assimilate into life at Logos by explaining homework assignments, chatting about English vocabulary, and even showing how to purchase a hot lunch. This year’s Peer Partners are: Josiah Anderson, Erica Johnson, Sarah Miller, Jameson Evans, Ayo Kayode-Popoola, and Emilie Dye.

Principal Matt Whitling stated, “The school’s goal is to have a maximum of three international students in each (secondary) class. The school is a blessing to (international students). They get a classical and Christian education. And they can also learn English from native speakers.” Mr. Whitling went on to explain that international students are also a blessing to the school.

International students are truly interesting people. After all, a diverse student body makes a fun school.

Principal's Note

The elementary students are off to a great start this year. The transition from summer to school has been a smooth one, and we are all looking forward to this year's course work and activities.

The teachers and students have been working diligently to establish good patterns early in the year so that we redeem the time from start to finish. Keep an eye on the dates on the back page, as we will be into the thick of things soon.

Students Earn Superior Scores in Speech Meets

On November 8, the Oaks hosted the annual interschool speech meet. The students listed below received exceptional scores in the October 23 intraschool meet and went on to the interschool competition. An  identifies those students who received superiors at the interschool meet.

Second at Districts

Cross Country Ends Season 5th in State

By Josiah Anderson

Our Logos Boys Cross Country team once again made it to the Idaho State Championships. They missed first place at Districts by only one point!

Idaho Falls hosted the State meet on November 2, about nine hours from Moscow. We had a safe trip down the Friday before the meet, leaving around 5:00 a.m., and previewed the course as soon as we got into town.

After a pep-talk from our coach, Mrs. Allison Ryan, on Saturday morning, the team took the field. Mrs. Ryan said, "I am so proud of all of you." It was a difficult course at altitude (4700 feet as compared to nearly 2600 in Moscow), but we pushed through and placed a respectable fifth out of 16 teams in the 1A-2A Division race.

Our highest placer, freshman Jackson Dickison, came in eighth place overall. Other team members included: (seniors) Sage Pratt and Jonathan Nance, (juniors) Paul Ryan, Sean Stanton, Jameson Evans, and Gaven Dooley, (sophomores) Everett Plotner and Josiah Anderson, and (freshman) Preston Evans.

The Logos harriers met each morning before school at 6:30 a.m. and put in a lot of hard work. They proved to be great team members and enjoyed running together. Many people set their personal bests over the 5K distance. (That's 3.1 miles, folks.) One highlight of the year was participating at the SunFair Invitational in Yakima, Washington, where about 2000 runners competed.

The team dealt with significant adversity in the form of injuries. Though the Knights won State last year, State competitors from that season, Jonny Handel and Levi Wintz, were out for the entire season. Paul Ryan missed the first half of the season and Sean Stanton sustained an injury just before State.

The team is looking forward to next year when, Lord willing, we will aim to compete for the State title again. Paul Ryan and Jackson Dickison will continue to train for the Nike Cross Nationals Northwest race in Boise on November 16.

Several girls turned out this season: (senior) Nellie Yager, (sophomore) Catherine Rheingans, and (freshman) Erica Johnson. They also put forth a good effort every morning. Most notably, Erica Johnson qualified for and competed at State.

A small contingent of junior high boys came out this year: Ben Dooley, Nic Minudri, Bennett Schlect, and Jadon Nuttbrock. Though not enough to form a scoring team (five runners are needed), these boys ran well. We also had one junior high girl, Megan Dye, who had a fabulous season, winning all of her races. Junior high races are 1.5 miles.

All in all, it was a good season for the Logos Cross Country Program. We thank God for the ability to run and Mrs. Ryan for her dedication to coaching.

Paul Ryan, a junior, won the District meet, 29 seconds ahead of the eventual State Champ.

Freshman Jackson Dickison raced to 3rd at Districts and 8th at State.

Josiah Anderson, a sophomore, placed 11th at Districts and 22nd at State.

Senior Sage Pratt was 5th at Districts.

Second in League; Third at Districts

Volleyball Finishes Strong in White Pine League

By Lizzie Schlect

This year was a different and exciting year for our Logos High School volleyball teams. This was their first year playing in the White Pine League, a league with competition closer to home and much tougher opponents than the Mountain Christian League.

The Lady Knights proved themselves well, tallying a total of 9 wins and 3 losses in their regular season. The overall record was 9-6 including non-league games against Genesee, Potlatch, and Troy.

The most exciting varsity match took place against Nezperce at the very end of the season, the Knight's last game which affected their seed at the tournament. This was a close 5-set game. The Knights lost the first set, won the second and third, lost the fourth, then pulled their way strongly through the fifth set to win the game.

The Knights then played at the district tournament, losing a rough first game against Kendrick, then beating Summit and Deary the second day. The third day, the Knights ended in third place at the tournament, losing a close game against Nezperce.

"This was our first year in the White Pine league, competing with consistently tough competition each match, said Coach Jessica Evans. "Our team made a great showing and came out tied for second in our division. I'm very proud of all the excellent play and godly attitudes from each and every player this season!" This is Coach Evans' 18th year coaching volleyball at Logos. She is an amazing coach and is excited for next year.

At the team awards dessert, Claire Ahmann received the Logos MVP award, Darcey Stephenson got the Most Improved Award, and the Knight Award was given to Elly Kline.

The starting line-up for the varsity team included: (juniors) Naomi Miller, Rozy Gray, Elly Kline, Lizzie Schlect, (sophomores) Sarah Miller, Claire Ahmann, and (freshman) Noel Saunders. The other swingers were (seniors) Lydia Nadreau, Rosie Greenfield, (sophomores) Sonya Isenberg, Darcey Stephenson, and Anna Rosendahl. The JV girls were (sophomore) Summer Stokes, and (freshmen) Emma Story and Abby Euhus.

Margeaux Wintz ('09) coached her second year of junior varsity volleyball this year. Her team played very well too, ending with 8 wins, 3 losses, and 2 ties. They also had two non-league losses. Coach Wintz was very happy with her team and the way they finished out the season.

Both junior high teams also did well, winning four games out of six in their season. Coach Mallory Wilson ('10) was happy with her teams' improvement.

National Merit Honorees

Sage Pratt

Two Logos seniors have been honored in the 59th annual National Merit Scholarship Program. Shane Stokes has been named a Semifinalist, while Sage Pratt is a Commended student.

About 1.5 million juniors in more than 22,000 high schools entered the 2014 National Merit Scholarship Program by taking the 2012 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT®), which served as an initial screen of program entrants. The nationwide pool of Semifinalists, representing less than one percent of U.S. high school seniors, includes the highest-scoring entrants in each state. The number of Semifinalists in a state is proportional to the state's percentage of the national total of graduating seniors.

More than two-thirds (about 34,000) of the approximately 50,000 high scorers on the PSAT/NMSQT® receive Letters of Commendation in recognition of their outstanding academic promise. Commended Students are named on the basis of a nationally applied Selection Index score that may vary from year to year and is typically below the level required for participants to be named Semifinalists in their respective states.

Small Cast Provides Big Entertainment

Catherine Rheingan, as Anna Alvarado, devises a plot with Ethan Howell, aka Egbert Van Horn.

Maid Bertha Blair (Moriah Struble) and Jack Dalton (Knox Merkle) find true love prevails.

By Katie Akin

TTrue love, revenge, and mustachioed villains: all the essentials of a good story. Logos Junior Varsity Drama delighted an audience of all ages with the old fashioned melodrama “Curse you, Jack Dalton!”

With only seven cast members and only six weeks to prepare, JV Drama did an excellent job of pulling together Wilber Braun’s web of lies and intrigue. Logos maintenance man Jody Jacobs directed the stalwart group.

“I like having something to fill my free time when I am wishing I could get into a classroom to fix something,” Mr. Jacobs said. The play certainly filled his time, with rehearsals after school four times a week. “I also liked that the play had the potential for some humor,” he added with a smile.

The characters were diverse, enjoyable, and well cast, ranging from the proud, wealthy Mrs. Donna Dalton (Emily Littlejohn) to her ditsy daughter Eloise (Cassandra Mares) to the slow, deliberate butler Richard Blair (Calvin Michaels) bent on revenge. Despite the evil plot of the beautiful Anna Alvarado (Catherine Rheingans) and the slimy Egbert Van Horn (Ethan Howell), the true love of Jack Dalton (Knox Merkle) and the Dalton’s maid Bertha Blair (Moriah Struble) prevailed in the end.

Chelsea Niemeyer, Nancy Jacobs, Carla Courtney, and Patricia Isenberg made sure the costumes, makeup, props, and scenery complimented the play perfectly. Luke Mason also did a flawless job with the lighting.

What was the best part of the play? Catherine Rheingans (Anna Alvarado) said her favorite part was, “Doing my evil scenes with Ethan.” As for Ethan (Egbert Van Horn), he just liked having water thrown at him. It is hard to pick the best part of such a fun play, all the more impressive because of its small cast and short preparation time.

Cassandra Mares as Eloise, Emily Littlejohn as Mrs. Donna Dalton, and Calvin Michaels as the butler rounded out the cast.

Riley Paul

Alyssa Salomé Dulany joined Tiamae (Sonnenberg '01) and Jonathan Dulany on the 6th of August at 9:00 p.m. She was born at home by water birth. She was in a hurry to get here. In fact she came so quickly that the midwife was the only one to make it in time! The other two attendants completely missed the birth. Alyssa weighed 7 lbs 1 oz. at birth and measured 20.5 inches. She is doing very well and Eliana is thrilled to have a little sister. Eliana's favorite thing to do with the baby is hold her hand and sing to her when she cries. We have been so deeply blessed!

Hans Hagen

Introducing baby Anders! Hans Anders Bjorn Hagen was born on September 2 (Labor Day) at 1:00 p.m., weighing 7 lbs., 6 oz. and measuring 19.8 inches. Tim Hagen ('99) and his wife Stephanie are thankful to the Lord for a healthy baby and for the outpouring of love from friends and family. God is gracious.
